THE STORY OF TRIANGLE

The TRIANGLE story began with the desire of two individuals to create an album free of all the commercial pressures. This idealistic concept would contain all the musical elements they ever dreamed of putting into an album and would focus on the music, a story with a message, and not on the most commercially acceptable representation. Tony Tralongo and Emilio Sarpa have been friends since the 1980's when they were both band members in Taipan. Emilio had used Ren Parisi and his facilities at Melbourne Studios many times to record Taipan albums. Between them, they had accrued some of their own obscure pieces which were not in their native genres, but rather, in the genre of a soundtrack to a horror movie. Tony was also a friend of Ren so, inevitably, Ren was approached to join the collaboration and the band TRIANGLE was born.

The logo of TRIANGLE is the unicursal 'Valknut', the Norse Viking symbol. Similarly, our combination comprises a trio of composers, producers, multi-instrumentalists and technicians.

THE STORY OF SHOCKWAVES

This is an epic tale of a man who lived on the fringe of his community, an alchemist. In a state of permanent fear and hiding, he recounts his ordeals in the most philosophical and tragic manner. The stage is set in medieval times at around the fifteenth century. The alchemist takes us even further back, thus being ancient in his view, to the fourth century, a time that was a turning point for western civilization. The alchemist exposes the Roman Emperor Flavius Constantine and how, through his Council of Nicea, rewrote the Roman Catholic Bible and history in general to suit his own agenda. From then on, all freethinking individuals such as the alchemists were branded as heretics. Being branded a heretic, and exposing these secret truths were punishable by torture and then death. These truths are still hidden from us to protect the consensus reality created by today's establishment. These facts still send shockwaves through the new world order. The alchemist's story and his observations are a warning not to blindly accept the consensus reality provided to us all at birth.

Each of us is born into a social order that has already arrived at a "consensus reality." Humans act in repetitious ways that become habitual. These soon become socially acceptable ways of behaving. After a while, these ways become "legitimised." These then become unconscious and gradually evolve into laws of reality. We no longer question them. In fact they are not reality at all. Other cultures do things quite differently. The consensus reality is what we've all agreed on as constituting reality.

"We learn at journey's end what we knew from the very start."
